ACCREDITATION OF WARTBURG THOUGHT SURE

Inspection Committee Impressed by Showing Made.

Faculty members and students are optimistic concerning the accreditation of Wartburg following the visit of the sub-committee of the Inter-Collegiate Standard Committee on January 31. This committee which inspected the grounds and environment of Wartburg is composed of M. J. Nelson of Iowa State Teachers College, Cedar Falls, H. C. Dennis of State University of Iowa, Iowa City, and L. A. Overholtzer of Iowa State College, Ames. They were appointed by Prof. O. Swan, chairman of the Inter-Collegiate Standing Committee. This sub-committee was very favorably impressed with faculty, equipment, and courses of study at Wartburg and recommended short but pointed which had been made in to short a period of time.

Although the committee can make no official pronouncement that the report made in March, it was intimated to President Fritz Wolf that their report would be very favorable. The decision of the committee is based on Wartburg's showing in the past, and only in regard to its capacity to train institutions, but other aside schools usually base their judgment on this criterion.

Plans are under way and negotiations have been begun for affiliation with the North Central Association and with the American Association of Colleges and Universities to have Wartburg approved also by these agencies.

The American Association of Junior Colleges is a national organization, has agreed to accept Wartburg two years effective as soon as the inspection of Standing Committee has passed favorably upon the school.

In the near future the State Department will inspect Wartburg Education Department so that official recognition may be granted for the teachers training courses which are being offered in this school.

PLAN ACTIVITIES TO AID EVERYONE

College Extra-Curricular Work Augments Class Room Program.

"Wartburg college aims to have no varied an activity program that it will meet the needs and interests of all." Professor Alf Swenson, Chairman of the student activities committee, said, in outlining the activity schedule for the year.

"For a complete education, the classroom work should be supplemented by a program of activities, physical, religious, social, and cultural, according to individual student."

He pointed out that the compulsory and intramural teams supply the physical training, give every opportunity to those of keen athletic ability, and at the same time contribute to all students the chance to assume a real appreciation and enjoyment for the various sports which today have become an vital part of American life. This grounds are average for the fall, and the opportunities both on the part of the active participating and the active on the part of the spectator. The ideals of the athletic program that are embodied in all of the activities of life. A Christian spirit, open intercollegiate competition, sportsmanship, and a simple change for fair and no thin skinned.

A varied program of wholesome recreation in which all can partake, is planned to help the student secure mental happiness. Such an undertaking can only be achieved with the full cooperation of the students.

For those students who are particularly interested in the more cultural activities, there are various musical organizations in which they are urged to partake. The opportunity for literary, and dramatic activity, is also open to those interested in these activities. Wartburg's debt to men and women who have interested in the fine arts. To the student body as a whole an opportunity will be opened to learn appreciation, taste, and enjoyment of these arts.

The daily convocation period stimulates the spiritual activity of every individual. The demands of the day should be further stimulated

ENGINEERS ARE KNIGHTED. 5 TO WARTBURG 5

Milwaukee Engineers Fail to Hold Early Lead.

The Wartburg Knights played their second consecutive semi-pro game Sunday night at Milwaukee, Wis., when they defeated the strong Milwaukee Engineers by the score of 37-31.

After the 5 team in the conference that could have defeated the Knights in the first half of the game Saturday night, the team would have to have been very lucky to have made it everything right at the right time.

The Engineers took an early 7 to 2 lead and the accuracy the visitors showed in the scoring department certainly did not look any too promising. The Knights then began to score round themselves and before one minute had gone the score was even the last. The score assumed from then on to the end of the game, and of 14-14 was reached. Here both teams tied, and the game ended minutes the score remained in a deadlock.

During the closing minutes of the game the Knights were fouled and elected by Kepler, scored three points and the game, 37 to 31, gave said Wartburg 17, Milwaukee 14.

The score: Wartburg 37, Wartburg. With the exception of several superior defense by the visitors the Knights held to their slim margin of 3 points. The scoring of the game when the visitors seemed to tire and the game ended as a deserved victory for Wartburg to the tune of 37-31.

Kepler, who had considerable difficulty the previous night locating the basket, and Harden, were the two guns on the attack, Kepler former scoring 14 points and the latter 13. The predominantly of these two stars was superb, asking them in the time of what outsiders would have been exceptional defensive play of the opposition. Oppermann played a long up defensive game and contributed to in the midst of every play, much to the disconcertion of the visiting teams.

For Milwaukee, Dalton and Wiskow, closely followed by Lentz were bulwarks on offense and defense. On foul locks Wiskow had free. If say years, sinking six out of seven attempts.

This victory of the Knights over the Milwaukee Engineers completed the entire completion of the conference and another detail of the Engineers would give the Knights a fighting chance to at least divide the conference honors.

The Wartburg 37 team was a close victory in the preliminary over the Cedar Falls Normal quintet by the devotional exercises held daily among fellow Christian students. Since our library is well supplied with all types of religious books and periodicals, by reading the student can increase his religious knowledge. Christianity overcomes the world through the power of faith. The factor alone that stimulates the student to seek fellowship with other Christian students is the desire to seek and serve God.

FACULTY SEE HOW GRADES SET

Students Impersonate Their Teachers at All-College Convocation.

A mock faculty meeting by a group of pre-theological students was a feature of the convocation hour sponsored by the faculty, Friday afternoon, February 1, in the Wartburg gymnasium. The group, individually impersonated each faculty member, met to determine grades of students in the pre-theological course, caused as students.

Hilarious laughter, played Professor O. Kilmer by Mosser. The mock faculty meeting, Professor Elmer Kreienbrink played a group of humanistic studies. Professor A. W. Swenson, chairman of the department of education, was one of the members, and the guess of Professor Swenson.

"Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the evening.

PREPARE NEW HISTORY ROOM

Articles Presented by Prof. Knappe Being Assembled in "History Room."

Much of the equipment which was collected for the new history department of Wartburg college is being installed in room 11 which is now the "History room." A shelf has been constructed in the rear of the room, which is to hold several pieces of statuary and several pieces of pottery. Also included the Bertel Mueller collection of Egyptian, Greek, and colonial diagrams, which is a very valuable set. Also a totem pole which is to be affixed to the ceiling, and which is under supervision of Prof. G. Otterness, Jr.

Prof. Knappe and given particular effort to have the room a collection of illustrations, paintings and other equipment of the period of history. Some additional articles that has been given to the new library is now awaiting the arrival of the collection. It is hoped to have a vertical file in the history room. This will be used in conjunction with class work. There is also a collection of pictures of the presidents which they can be projected.

Some of major importance collection cases are being stained to the color of the woodwork in order to place the maps now in use. The cases will be placed in the room adjacent to the library room and will be used in conjunction with history.

Professor A. W. Swenson, head of the department of education, school of Wartburg college, has available an excellent starting rule on the tennis courts south of the administration building, but too persistent exercise may cause trouble, he said today. It is expected that the tennis courts will be ready for use by the middle of the week, the rink in the afternoon and town residents at night.

For those who are unable to spend four years in school, a one-year course and a two-year course have been arranged. The one-year course is a short course, which, includes an introduction to the Bible, a Bible study, a study of the life and work of Christ; a course in the elementary school; a course in growing out of the Catechism; an introduction to the various phases of Christian education, including practice teaching and observation in the local Sunday school and Bible classes. Nelson, head of the Philosophy Department at Wartburg, said "the time is undoubtedly approaching when our lower congregations will call upon well trained people as parish helpers and leaders in the various departments of church work which have been over of by busy volunteers. Our Christian schools, our Christian Sunday schools, our Bible study groups, our Christian Endeavor groups, in fact, our all, to provide the special training needed to make our work as effective as possible to serve as well-trained workers in our churches. Unless the church gets the religious education of the rising children, the purpose of people who are so well prepared for this work as to be a real school worker in its life field, we cannot expect to make the educational work effective.

Interest in Christian education is in harmony with the purpose of the Department of Christian Elementary Education, and in accordance with the Board of Higher Education suggestion that the Lutheran church train young men and women to participate in the work of the Christian education.

This new composition is being used by the choirs of many churches and has been very favorably received. Prof. Heist's composer has set words to music which, at first sight, appear to be a set. Professor Heist has composed and arranged many other anthems, among the best known are: "Holy, Holy, Holy", "Oh, Sabbath and Holy Work In Does."

The Warthburg on the Hill

On Bedloe Island in New York harbor stands a large bronze figure holding aloft a flaming torch, and greeting the immigrant as he approaches the new world.

October 28th, this noble symbol of liberty will celebrate her fiftieth birthday. Her mighty right arm holds the torch on high, while a baby volume is clutched by her left. Why not a stout sword in her right hand and a protective shield on her left arm? No, the artist has determined that she represents enlightment, knowledge, and learning. More powerful than shining steel, of gilded shield is the book which the bolds in her arm.

Her flaming torch opens the eyes of men that they may not grope about in the darkness of ignorance that only confuse, encourages strife and distrust. The statue of liberty is elegment of the educational spirit of our day.

Wartburg college, basing its teachings upon the word of God, has even a greater message than the flaming lamp and the encircled book. It is its noble task to gather the youth of the midwestern American Lutheran church, to fill their hearts with the light of the message of God Himself. It is a mission to prepare young men for the ministry, and to prepare young men and women for the duties of life. Her courses of study, her work, her atmosphere, all are concerned about that word which is a light unto men's paths and a lamp unto their ways.

She is striving valiantly with the means at her disposal to fulfill her mission. How well she will succeed, the future will tell. Friends of the school are sure that it will fulfill its mission. It does she respect that names of prospective students is sent to them in charge. In the spirit of the school we generate, that the torch may not be dimmed. She pleads with her friends that they may remember her in their prayers, and think, as they fill their offerings and bring their sacrifices, they will not neglect to assist her program.

LIBRARY

All our visitors remark about our fine library facilities. They see the well-lit reading room, the "stacks" with the oak furniture, the quiet alcoves, the many books. "A school with so many books," they say, "certainly has a fine library."

The more discriminating visitor examines our reference section and finds a number of high-priced reference works. There is the new Britannica ($130), there the Dictionary of American Biography ($120), there the Allgemeine Deutsche Biographie ($90), and here the Weimar edition of Luther's Works ($100). And seeing all these costly investments and also a multitude of reference dictionaries, domestic and foreign, our discriminating visitor says, "Certainly, a fine library!"

And the still more discriminating inspector of libraries pays us a visit and makes his report. He visits the library, stops in every time he begins his inspection with the 1936 (Philosophy), proceeds in the 200's (Religion), passes on in the 300's (Social Sciences), and on to the 900's. This critic of modern college wants to know whether the library is well-balanced, whether one department is as "live" as the other department, whether the condition of new books is as good as the condition of old documents. Having made his cursory inspection, he turns with a smile and says, "A fine well-balanced library."

We agree, of course. But visitors have a way of seeing only what you have; they seldom inquire what you need. The process of converting a stack of books into a library is in the main a process of filling gaps. Gaps exist when that one can find any given title within a minute requires an immense amount of work, and, we might add, a great amount of money. For that work can only be done by an expert.

The great need of Wartburg college library is a fund of money that will enable us to convert our present collection of books into a well-working library. Can the alumni think of any more worthy project than collecting a sum of money which will help us to gift our library into first class shape?

DEAN EXPLAINS THE PLACE OF BUDGETING

"Orientation (observing)! What's that?" asks the Freshman, with somewhat bamboozled over getting a D in that last final.

"That is a course which will teach you the efficiency and economy in study habits, and, if you will pay attention for a few minutes, I will show you how you can remedy your deficiency.

"In the first place, do you know how to budget your time? Let me help you to work out a time schedule which will help you find sufficient hours to study for these college courses which require more effort than do the high school courses.

"In the second place, let me show you how to study effectively. How to concentrate. How to find the main points, and how to memorize.

"Thirdly, get rid of that false sense of security which blinds that all is well even if you cut classes, fail in your assignments, fail in your reference and collateral reading. Don't think that you will get by because some of the upper classmen tell you that such and such a class will not bagger you. It does happen that students flunk out and this can be avoided if students come in their college officials ruthlessly getting advice from senior one also.

"Furthermore, don't think that you can take a full schedule of college courses and still keep up your work through college. Take your time. Don't overdo work. You can have a good time and still do good work. Above all, watch your health. You won't be able to do much work if your physical condition is run down, and you have to miss classes because you neglected to take care of your physical well being.

"And finally, don't forget that although all the extra-curricular activities have their practical place in college life, they do not constitute the main purpose. If you spend too much time on them you will not have sufficient time for study. Above all, take a little time to analyze yourself, be critical, adjust your difficulties and do something about them."

"Gosh, Dean," says the frosh, "I think I can improve myself if I follow your advice. I wish I had come in to see you earlier in the year."

"Well, right," says the Dean, "you can still profit by my services."

And as the door closes he takes another huge puff from his cigar and exclaims, "Ah, what a grand and glorious feeling!"

Male Birds Faster

It has been found that with many of the migratory birds of North and Mid-dle England from Southern Europe and Africa, the males appear about a week before the females.

Rainbow Around the Sun

A rainbow around the sun is rather the exception, and exhibits colors of the rainbow, and in the same order. It is caused by differ-ence of light by minute ice crystals or drops of water floating in the air.

The Eyes of Fish

The eyes of fish are like our own in structure and lenses, but with wholly modifications. Eyelids are absent, so that the eye remains always unprotected. The eyeball has little power of movement; the crystalline is flatter and the lens more globular than in the eyes of mammals, and it accounts that fish are comparatively nearsighted. While in the human eye the cornea is flatter as compared with those of the higher animals, it has less power of refraction or none at all that are shifted and fish, therefore, are generally of broader shape, or in a wide stream, as in the species of the ocean.

The American Jack

The jack was the first animal displayed by man for carrying burdens. Jacks were first introduced by King David. In 1781 the king of Spain presented George Washington with a jack and jennet. Another jack was presented to the principal breeds imported from abroad are Catalonian, Maltese, Spanish, Spanish Spain. Mules from Italy, Island of Malta, Corsica, Sardinia, Provence, mountains of Spain, Majorca from Island of Majorca, Poitou from province of that name in France. American jacks in 15 to 16 hands high, weighing 1,000 to 1,200 pounds, heart girth up to 72 inches, cannon bone 8 to 10 inches. Color, black.

INTEGRATION OF EDUCATION AND CHRISTIANITY

Unity of Aim Goal of Wartburg to Best Develop Student.

By Dr. J. H. Hillner

"Integration" has become the watchword in education. The growth of differentiation, of multiplying specialties in science and scholarship has reached the point where unity of aim is lost sight of. Education, what is it, anyhow? L. P. Jacks, recalling to mind Carlyle, says, "There was one set of operators who tinkered our minds in the classroom, and another set who tinkered our bodies in the gymnasium, and there was a third gentleman, who was supposed to train our souls and look after our souls. But there was no unity of aim. The mind department, the body department, the character department, the soul department, were at sixes and sevens." The need for integration, for finding a rallying point, and for harmonizing of diverse elements of the educational program around it and into its process is vital in so far as that it has become a challenge to the integrity of modern schools.

Our Christian schools have a responsibility which all other schools. We have since the 17 with them in the integration of education. In fact, more than not only the duty is to give unity in a secular program, but to integrate the secular element of education with Christianity. The purpose of our schools cannot be justified in any other way. The primary purpose of Christian colleges is to give a Christian interpretation of all truth. The personal influence of the teacher and a guiding Christian philosophy of life are essentially important as they are, cannot do the work. Every activity on the campus must be justified on Christian ground and the teaching of biology, psychology, economics, history, philosophy, literature, and the like, is to be related vitally and integrally to the Christian conception of God and His purpose for the world. Can it be done? Professor Hoy informed us in the first number of "Christianity Today" that integration is no longer considered by educational leaders of America to be a potent force in social reconstruction." Calamity is a potent force in integration.

There was a time when this problem of integration was a beautifully simple one. The Bible, the Church, and history constituted the main part of the curriculum of the Christian college. There was very little also to integrate. The college was religious to the extent that everything else was considered in subservience.

Today the best of our schools have a curriculum of courses which are not easily digested. Modern science has a shifting effect on under souls, especially when they come in college who is kindergarten education in religion. The impact of the various studies and the ever increasing number of "outside" activities make it difficult for the students to keep Christ the center of their life and to make Christ the center of their life instead of an object in a disjointed focus. There is the personality of the student which often makes all integration impossible. We remember the indictment of our own Lutheran students by student Hinderle of St. Olaf college who was impressed by the "large number of fence-sitting Christians in our church schools who never grow but must dialectegrate because they refuse to surrender their lives to the only integrating force in the universe, Jesus." Finally, there is the subject-matter to be tracked in our schools which does not easily lend itself to a Christian interpretation. Here is a pioneering project of great difficulty, but of immense significance. When a scholarly man of the 21st century justified the teaching of arithmetic in a Christian school "because it is important on account of the use of numbers in the Bible, or of geometry because in the Scriptures stories of all kinds occur in the building of the ark and Solomon's temple", the difficulty of integration becomes apparent.

Yet, a serious effort is being made by our teachers to find a basis on which the students may be taught with Christian principles and ideals as possible without forcing the issue. And there are a number of teachers who are working out a plan which seeks to effect an organic integration. In our derelictes we find the faculty after where using Bible reading and prayer are after as as the daily sacrifice. There are our daily convocations where students and faculty gather in a devotional spirit. No one will doubt the integrating force of a talk in which not only president and Bible teacher but the street teacher and the history teacher and the coach and every other man on the faculty bear witness to the thing which is needful. The unity of college work and the spirit of love and service which pervades the classroom and the courses in Christian ethics are not a mere appendix, but the rallying center of our work.

These are the foundations on which we hope to build a still stronger and more integrated program.

Stress Dormitory Life As A Part of Wartburg Education

Offer Varied Contacts as Way of Building Student Character.

By MISS K. KAISER,
Dean of Women.

The function of the college is to train its students for a happy and successful life. The college curriculum is so arranged that the student is mentally and intellectually prepared to carry on his life's work. But so much more than mental training is needed in modern times if our young people are to be prepared for life. It is the ideal of the college to give full cultural training through more casual class contacts.

But dormitory life it is possible to give a full cultural background to the students. In our dormitory life here at Wartburg we are endeavoring to instill in our young people a full and complete understanding of group living, and on that it exists. In order to facilitate group living we have certain simple standards which make it possible for everyone to be of equal dignity and thus he will have a happy group life.

It does not take long before the new girl or dormitory freshman realizes that God has created us with many personalities as individuals. The contacts which are made are many and various; each person must attempt to learn and understand every other person if there is to be complete harmony. Everyone is immeasurably richer as a result of this contact; they have come face to face with many good traits which they might do well to imitate into their own character; they have had an opportunity of developing their own and habits as imposed in others.

The cultural lines and clashes of various individuals vary. Through contact with one another it is possible to develop and refine these tastes.

So dormitory life can teach us to get along with the various kinds of people. Half of our life is spent getting along with others, so if one's life has shown the knack of harmony with others, it has helped us to achieve one of the foremost steps toward real life happiness.

Dormitory life also gives the student an opportunity to a fuller and fuller plan. This plan has been set up because all of our students, both men and women, eat together. This gives our students people a chance to become more informally acquainted than is possible through class contacts. Since the host and hostess are in charge of their table, it is their responsibility to see that the needs and desires of their group are satisfied, in so far as it is possible. It is up to them to so guide the table conversation that all are included and feel at ease.

These are good practical lessons in learning to feel, thoroughly at ease in social and business life. As you go through your life alone, single, yet formally correct table etiquette can be very informally guided, through frequent rearrangement of the seating in the dining room, every person is given ample opportunity to become acquainted with the entire group. This training should tend to develop in our students ease, charm and poise to meet any situation with which they might be faced.

Wartburg aims to impart to its students, not only a sense of true values which will help them to formulate true judgments in life but also the cultural polish which the times demand from its educated class.

"DAY BY DAY"

Only day by day I ask:
Point my course to my task.
And with willing strength endue
And with patience morning new.
Only this I ask—and when
Life's over, then smile
With those hands of peace that sung
Knowest but Thy will hath done.

"I SAID TO MY SOUL".

I said to my soul: "Fillmore
The lamp on thy vision and take
Thy pick of the double pitch
Down the alleys of my heart, and

Thou loose the ore of God's love
And gather and fetch above,
And spill it as one whose joy is great
The house of his brother to fill with song.

KNIGHTS CARRY OFF 33-23 WIN OVER GOSLINGS

Wartburg Gets Fourth Conference Win Here Friday.

Coach Herbst's Wartburg Knights resumed their winning ways when they trounced the Northwestern Goslings by a 33-23 score, here Friday, January 31. It was the fourth conference win for the Knights against three defeats and the second win over Northwestern, having previously defeated Mr. Woodmansee's on their home court.

The game started out as a close affair with the Knights unable to shake the Goslings from their presence for the first five minutes. The Goslings opened the scoring by sinking a free throw, but Capper, Martin, Nygren and Kretschmar combined to ring up five points in quick succession and from then on the outcome of the contest was never in doubt. The Black and Gold kept continuing to set a blistering pace, climbing up 11 points in the first half while allowing the Northwestern team a grand total of but two field goals and two caught fouses for six points.

On the first play in the second period Oppermann sank a field goal to run up the score to 16-6. Wartburg, but the Goslings came back with a shooting rally, dropping in four baskets before the Knights were able to regain their pace and match the rally with a counter rally, after which the game settled down to what they were originally. After this early second half spurt, the Goslings never seriously threatened the Wartburg lead.

Oppermann and Harden shared scoring honors, each spilling the pot for five baskets from the floor and one from the free throw line. Lockhart, coming in late in the second half, succeeded in chalking up six points, the same number he tosses with 4 goals.

KNIGHTS LOSE ON WISCONSIN TRIP

Defeated by Engineers 37-52, by Mission House 48-42, On Successive Nights.

The Wartburg Knights dropped two conference games to Wisconsin foes last games last week-end and in a game at the top of their form, they were defeated by the Milwaukee Engineers Jan. 24 by the score of 37-52 and were again defeated on the following night when they lost to Mission House 46-42.

The two losses put the Knights out of the running for the conference crown for the year and they suffered again no defeats for Platteville and Mr. Woodmansee's eleven.

Behind the sharpshooting of Dehlow and Wilkins, two of the league's top scorers, Milwaukee was able to gain an early lead which they never relinquished. At the half the Milwaukee was leading at the half 19-13. The Milwaukee team came back strong at the start of the second half and in the scoring up to 30-18 before the Knights attempt to rally in the final minutes. They drew up to within three points of the Engineers but could not drive the final basket to close the score 37-52.

The following night the Wartburg engine seemed to have lost their old form and were able to pull up a lead in the first few minutes of the game, but Mission came back strong and held the lead the first half to run the score up to 28-20. The game continued over the second half, 20th the Knights drew up to within three points near the end of the second half but could not close the final gap and Mission enjoyed a six point lead in the game winning.

Dahlow, Lewis and Wilkins led the scoring for the Engineers while Mission House was paced by Steinert and Wherrette with 14 points and Meschke with 10. On the trip the Knights took points and Mission with 23 together with Oppermann and Kretschmar playing the best ball for the Knights.

KNIGHTS TRAVEL FOR IOWA GAMES

Independence, Elkader, Lenox Will Be Junior College Opponents Soon.

The Knights will engage in three return contests in the next two weeks with junior colleges which they played in the earlier part of the year. All games will be played away from home when the Knights meet Independence, Elkader, Lenox on the fourth, seventh and eleventh of February, respectively.

In the previous tilts with these teams the Wartburg quintet won three victories. They defeated Lenox on Dec. 3 by the score of 35-22 and the following week registered a win over Independence on the 10th by score of 36-20, and the following night defeated Elkader 30-22.

The Wartburg quintet has improved greatly since the opening games with these schools and should experience no great difficulty in tipping them for the second time, although the Lenox quintet has been winning nearly all of their conference games in the Iowa junior college loop up to the present.

These games together with a home and house series with Iowa Falls will serve as breathers before the Tri-State tilts with Mission House and the Illinois Wesleyan Mites at the end of the month.

Knight Flashes

The Knights didn't fare so well on their last jaunt into Wisconsin, losing both to Milwaukee and to Mission House. Although this present-day team will not winning shape the Knights had for sweeping the conference title, they are very entertaining have a good chance of finishing high in the conference standings. Their record may not appear very promising, losing 3 games three and won the same number of times the remaining four tilts-and contests are played in the Knights own backyard. Since the Knights lost two of their three games by a margin of only five points and they were downed by Mission House by six points, how can high that score of these defeats may be erasing by victories over each of the three teams to be met in the next fortnight. Two of the three teams to be met have been fixes the Lenox quintet leading the Iowa Junior college conference, looms especially strong.

Two games remain on the conference fall after the Knights encounters with the Engineers and Mission House this last week end. Both games will find the Knights on the home floor playing earlier in the season. The boys meet Coach Hyde's eleven on Saturday, February 22, and clash with the Mites the following Thursday, February 25. The latter game is the postponed game of January 16.

In the scoring race within the last two weeks, Martin and Harden have been sharing the honors with the Mason leading scorer, Kepler. Oppermann from his guard position has managed to garner 21 points in the six conference games up to the Mission House affair.

Milton invaded the Knights stronghold and was defeated on Tuesday, Jan. 21, by a 31 to 23 score. The game was a well played contest and the Knights finally got several victory within ten days over the visiting Milton team, having defeated the Wisconsinites on January 11 by a 32-24 score.

The game started out slow and before the Brethren were able to settle they found themselves trailing by a score of 8-0. Wartburg then took time out to reorganize their offense and during the remainder of the first half succeeded in holding the Milton team to a field goal and a free throw while they poured 19 points through the hoop to emerge at the half with a comfortable eight point lead, 19-11.

This lead was increased early in the second period until at one time the Knights were commanding a 24 to 12 lead. With the score at 27 to 17, Oppermann, star Wartburg guard, was removed via the personal foul route and the Milton team succeeded in cutting the lead down to four points. Wartburg, however, successfully staved off the late Milton rally and dropped in a brace of baskets to make the score 31 to 23, at which time Coach Herbst sent in his entire second string who held the opponents to one basket, ending the game 31-23, Wartburg.

Nygren was high scorer of the evening with 12 points while Sinsky, Milton forward, led the mates with 10 points. In other words the entire Wartburg team contributed to withstand and polished style of basketball with no outstanding stars.

In a curtain raiser the Wartburg junior second team in another thriller winning 22-21 when Seidel dropped in his sixth and winning free throw the gun had sounded. The Shell Rock team was the loser.
